Introduction: Since students of English Honours are required to practice Creative Writing for their SEC course, a hands-on training by an experienced writer would be of immense help to them. With this idea the Department organized a one day workshop for the students of the Department on Creative Writing.

Brief Report: The resource person, Dr. Sumita Bannerjea familiarized the students with various aspects of fiction writing like character, plot, narrative techniques and stylistic devices and so on and advised them on the various ways they can approach an idea for story writing. She then gave them several exercises through which they got hands-on experience of writing short stories. The entire workshop was highly interactive where students could discuss their individual ideas with the instructor and benefit thereby.

The workshop not only gave the students a better understanding of the process of creative writing but also gave them an opportunity to write short stories which they could get reviewed both by the resource person and fellow participants.

No of participants: 20
